

BAD BLAZE AT HOSPITAL

Building Occupied By 97 Colored Female Patients Is Burned.

NO CASUALTIES OCCURRED

Prompt Action of The Institution's Fire Fighters Saved the Buildings.

Fire was discovered in the roof of the building of the Western State Hospital, two miles east of town, Wednesday night at 10.30 o'clock. The building was of brick and three stories high and contained 97 negro women. It was a comparatively new building, having been erected by Dr. Letcher about 15 years ago and overhauled last year. It was situated about 125 feet from the wing of the main building in which the female wards are located.

The fire was burning fiercely in two places when discovered and had burned through the attic floor and was falling into the third story rooms when discovered. The hospital has its own fire company and under the direction of Richard Fay it was soon in working order and the engineer turned on full pressure and a good stream was soon playing on the flames, while the work of rescuing the panic-stricken patients was carried out systematically and successfully. One woman was overcome by the smoke, but was soon rescued, there were some narrow escapes, but all were saved unhurt. The lady attendants in the main building and the good judgment of the fire department saved that side of the building as soon as the alarm was given, thus preventing any excitement in the main building.

The City Fire Department sent a hose cart and some fire fighters out to the scene and although the fire was under control when they reached the hospital, good service was rendered in putting out what remained. A team of horses belonging to the Williamson Transfer Co. was used to take the wagon out and one of the horses dropped dead at the end of the run.

Dr. F. P. Thomas went out in his auto and rendered assistance in helping to care for the patients.

The origin of the fire is not known. An investigation has been made, but no satisfactory solution of the mystery has been arrived at.

Dr. H. P. Sights, the superintendent, was in Paducah on business, and caught a night train home. Dr. Sights estimates the loss at from $7,000 to $8,000, which is covered by insurance.

One of the old buildings formerly used has been hastily put into use and will be occupied while the damaged building is being restored.

Dr. Sights expressed himself as greatly appreciating the services rendered by the city department and the people generally.

Burned By Carbolic Acid

The two-year-old son of Mr. W. T. Major, of the Beverly neighborhood, was badly burned by carbolic acid yesterday morning. The little fellow secured a bottle of the drug from the mantle and put it to his mouth. His mouth and face were painfully burned but his internal injuries are not considered serious, as very little of the poison was swallowed.

ACME MILLS MAY BE SOLD

Negotiations That Have Been On For Some Time Nearing End.

PLANT IDLE FOR TWO YEARS.

Everybody Is Anxious To See This Big Enterprise Resume Operation.

Negotiations have been in progress between the bond holders of the Acme Mills and Elevator Co. and capitalists of Tennessee for several weeks looking to the sale of the mills. It is said that the Tennessee people are here this week and a purchase of the milling property will probably be consummated before their return. Should the mills be sold it means that, after an interval of three years, the wheels will be turning and the future appearance of the biggest milling plant in the South will be dispated by the service of a small army of operators. "So be it" say all. This mill is the only enterprise in Hopkinsville that is not busy.

Friedman, who has been here with several shows, is again on hand meeting his old friends.

$7,500 IN GAMBLE CASE

Verdict Given For Killing Volney Gamble At Crofton.

SUED FOR TEN THOUSAND.

The Long Drawn Out Cherry Spring Case Taken Up Yesterday.

The case of L. E. Gamble, Admr., of Volney Gamble, deceased, was brought to a close yesterday and a verdict was rendered giving the plaintiff $7,500. He sued the Mason-Hanger Co. and the L. & N. railroad Co. jointly for $10,000 damages for the death of Gamble at their construction camp.

Yesterday the case of Cherry Bros. against Christian county was begun. Trimble & Bell represent the plaintiffs and County Attorney John C. Duffy is conducting the defense. The amount involved is $500, but it was expected yesterday that the trial would continue throughout the day.

The plaintiffs claim that the damages sued arise from the defendants drying a spring in their yard while quarrying rock for building a pike from Beverly to Lafayette in 1907-8. The case was tried before Judge Cook and the jury awarded damages for $500. Judge Cook set aside the verdict as excessive and the case was carried to the Court of Appeals and remanded for new trial.

Noel Bowman, charged with carrying concealed a deadly weapon, appeared before court and pleaded guilty. The court assessed a fine against him of $25.

President Hopeful

President Taft has at last summed up the political situation, as he saw it, declaring in a statement issued from Dalton, Mass., that the third-term party was out of the running and that the race was between the Democratic and Republican parties. The President stated that he had received every assurance that he would be elected.

Alfalfa for Winter of 1913.

For most feeding purposes, three tons of alfalfa hay are fully equal to four tons of any other hay. Ton for ton, alfalfa costs no more to produce than clover or timothy hay. If you want alfalfa hay in your barn lot for feeding during the winter of 1913, now is the time to plan for it. We are talking now to our readers in the corn belt proper. Will you grow it on land which at present is in small grain? If so, you had best plan to stack the grain or in some way get the bundles off as soon as possible after harvest. Then go on with the disk and put a dust mulch over the entire field. The moisture saved in this way may mean the entire difference between success and failure when the alfalfa is seeded in August. Then when you get time, plow to a moderate depth, and then disk every week or ten days till alfalfa is doing fine in August. This is the way to get the best alfalfa. It is the best alfalfa in the world.

CHINESE NURSES.

"One thing that you can't find in New York is a professional Chinese nurse," a doctor said. "I had the town raked over and aft for one not long ago. A sick American recently came home from the Orient declared that a Chinese nurse was essential to recovery, and the doctors on the case instituted a thorough search for such an attendant. Sometimes I think there ought to be a few of them imported, in spite of labor laws. Every person I have met who has ever been attended by a Chinese nurse cannot be satisfied with any other. There are a number of them in Chinese cities. They have been trained by American and European nurses and missionaries, but as soon as they get the bang of the business they go their instructors one better in gentleness and soothing ways. It is common for persons who have known their administrations abroad to ask for them in New York, but they cannot be found."

NEW STRIKE METHOD.

A new sort of strike has been invented by the waiters of a fashionable cafe in Prague. The proprietor had refused to raise their wages. As they had declared that they would not do a stroke of work until he did this, he was much gratified to see them all arrive the very morning after their ultimatum. There was a change in his feelings when they all sat down at the little table for guests and facetiously called for drinks. Neither persuasion nor threats could induce them to go, and at last the proprietor had to call in the police and turn them out. They were not in the least daunted, and announced that they would come back the next day with a number of their colleagues. They hoped to be a party of five hundred. The struggle is not yet ended, and the usual frequenters of the cafe are following its developments with interest.—Manchester Guardian.

FORTUNE FOR INVENTION.

There is a handsome fortune awaiting the person who will invent a method of curing hams and bacon from which the skin has been removed. Albert Halstead, American consul at Birmingham, reports that the increasing use of plastics as leather and its tendency to advance in price have made the leather manufacturers cast wistful eyes at the skin that is wasted on being left on pork products. The Leather Trades Review estimates that there is a yearly loss of skins amounting to about three million dollars in Great Britain and Ireland alone.

MADE THINGS LIVELY.

At Twin Falls, Idaho, a swarm of bees settled in the spout of a stand pipe at the water tank, and when the fireman on the first train came along and attempted to lower it there was great excitement in the neighborhood. He was so vigorously attacked that he fled from the tender, the engineer was driven from the cab, the brakemen locked themselves in the caboose at the rear end of the train; the fireman and switchman were routed, but after an hour's fight with the bees a farmer came along, turned a small stream from a garden hose on them, quickly scooped them into a box, put them under his arm and went along home. Then the train moved on.

KING GEORGE DETHRONED.

The slight extent to which the king of England can influence men's fashions is shown by the practical disappearance of the frock coat in New York and London in favor of the cutaway. Yet King George and the prince of Wales still stick to the frock, as may be seen by the photograph of these personages in the act of performing their social duties. The rebellion of the king against putting on a high hat at Henley shows, on the other hand, that he is, to that extent at least, with the "sang and sensible."

MOUNTAIN SOLD AT AUCTION.

A curious auction has just taken place at Grandson, Canton of Vaud, Switzerland, the principal "article" being a mountain. It is named Ersee, near Mont Aubert, in the Jura Alps, and has an altitude of about 1,500 feet, with its slopes well covered with timber. Twenty years ago the same mountain was sold for $13,000, but it has since increased in value, and is now being sold for $14,000.

Will You Spend ONE DOLLAR to Elect Wilson President?

How deep is your conviction that this government ought to be in new hands, in clean hands?

How much are you in favor of a clean slate from Wilson and Marshall clear down the line to the very smallest offices in your locality?

The Democratic National Committee has every reason to believe that every progressive voter is willing to spend a dollar to elect Wilson and Marshall and their ticket. And that thousands are anxious to contribute to the Wilson Campaign Fund in amounts of $2, $5, $10 and $20.

To such we make our appeal. To such we must look for victory.

Time An Important Factor

This is another case where time is money. The enemy have their funds—supplied instantly by the interests. We have only a few days and contributions to be effective must be received at once. There is no question of the money of the People being able to defeat the money of the Trusts. Because it is greater both in volume and will be used in straightforward telling ways. But to be effective it must be received and used within the next few days. Quick action is absolutely necessary. Let us have your contribution or the list you make up from your friends and co-workers today if possible, tomorrow sure.

How Your Money Will Be Spent

Woodrow Wilson, our standard bearer, has never had the time or disposition to talk about himself. He has never used spectacular methods to place himself in the spotlight. His greatest work has been done without ostentation, in the most expeditious, dignified manner. The great mass of voters do not know what a really great man Wilson is. They do not know all he has done. They do not understand all the features of his platform. We must tell them.

To educate this great nation of voters, especially the clear thinking Independent Democrats, Republicans and Progressives who choose their leader on his merits, means the expenditure of a vast amount of money. We propose to use your dollars in just this way—judiciously, and without a penny frittered away for an unnecessary item. We know you have confidence we will do this thing—and successfully.

Why the Dollar Counts

In this campaign the issues lie between the forces of Representative Government and Popular Government. In Representative Government only a part of the people have influence—those with no political faith, who spend fortunes in any direction where their own ends are furthered for money. In Popular Government all the people have influence, because their executives and legislators do not dare to thwart the expressed will of the people. Representative Government, as ever, this year is being supported by the money of the interests. It is being spent lavishly to give the voters a wrong impression of Wilson. Popular Government, this year, to win, must depend on the truth being told about Wilson. We must publish his record and platform broadcast so that no one can controvert it. Your $1, your $2, your $5, your $10 or $20 will count and count to win if spent in this work.

As He Understood It.
A Portobello (Scotland) schoolboy has produced the champion howler of the season. The passage for paraphrase was from Kingsley: "For men must work and women must weep, though storms be sudden and waters deep, and the harbor bar be moaning." "Men and women," said the youngster, "must keep on working though the inn at the harbor is groaning for its customers."

Roasted Victim Alive.
An almost unbelievably cruel happening has come to light at Hiroshima, Japan. There a man and his wife have been arrested for wilfully remaining a live man. The prisoners were in charge of a crematorium, and while at work a fatal voice coming out of a coffin begged for fresh air. The couple took no notice, however, and proceeded to apply fire, roasting the man alive.

The Italian Treatment.
The Italians resort to a very simple method when they wish to obliterate the injurious effects of salt air and sunshine after a visit to their villas, the shore of the Adriatic, the Tyrrhenian sea or the lakes. They bathe the face with the white of an egg, well beaten, let it dry on the skin and rinse it off in soft water after fifteen minutes. The treatment is repeated three or four times, and always at night just before retiring.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that, Catarrh, or Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Dr. J. C. Smith's Catarrh Cure is the only medicine that cures the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the cause of the disease, and giving the system a new and healthy building. The cure is so simple and so easy to take, that it can be taken in the most delicate cases, and it is so effective that it has cured thousands of cases of Catarrh, and it is so safe that it can be taken by the most delicate of patients. For list of testimonials, address J. C. Smith, P. O. Box 100, Toledo, Ohio. Sold by all Druggists. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation. Advertisement.

THE LAST ROSE

By TEMPLE BAILEY

(Copyright, 1912, by Temple Bailey. All Rights Reserved.)

Miss Persis Monroe walked in her garden.

"Winter's coming, Peter," she said to the big yellow cat who followed her.

Peter scurried down the path after the rattling, romping leaves. He rather liked the coolness of the northwest wind. It made him feel young again and frisky.

But the wind made Miss Persis shiver. In summer, with her roses about her in her soft white dresses, with a rare lace scarf picked up by her father on one of his voyages draped about her head, she felt young and looked young. But in the winter her growing poverty compelled her to buy serviceable gowns.

In the days of her girlhood Miss Persis had never roughened her hands by labor. A prosperous sea captain can keep his family in a certain luxury. But with the death of her father and mother the last remnant of the family fortune disappeared. After that Miss Persis and an invalid sister supplemented a most meager income by the summer sale of roses.

The guests from the summer hotel bought them. There was usually a thriving trade—and even as she spoke of the winter's nearness Miss Persis had a comfortable sense of the little nest egg in the bank which would keep them from cold and hunger.

"But it's very small, Peter," said Miss Persis, "and I don't care to get a new dress."

Miss Persis had dreamed of a new dress. She had never spoken of her ambition to her sister, for Lavinia would have seen a certain unworthy vanity in the desire for prettiness, but Miss Persis craved a gown of subdued gray—her ambition had even compassed a touch of pink at the throat.

"Yet, I'm only forty, Peter," said Miss Persis as she bent down to smell the last pink rose left in the garden. "And I haven't had a becoming gown in winter since I was a girl. I wish I could have just one."

Miss Persis did not believe in fancies, but as she thought of it afterward she wondered if some golden grandchilder had not waved her wand at that moment to make her wish come true.

But there was no evidence of magic in the personality of the man who spoke to Miss Persis from the other side of the fence.

"I understand, madam, that you sell roses."

Miss Persis looked up. An erect and military-looking gentleman was waiting for her answer.

"I sell in the season," said Miss Persis. "We had many roses, but now that the winter is coming we have only one—I'm sorry."

As she stood there, tall and graceful, beside the bush with its one faint pink blossom, the man outside felt his heart singing, and the words formed themselves, thus:

"'Tis the last rose of summer,
Left blooming alone—"

"I should like to buy that one," he said, "there's a child ill at the hotel. I want to take her a flower."

"Then you shall not buy it," said Miss Persis eagerly. "Let me give it to you—for the child."

He felt that to insist would be to hurt her.

"In the winter what do you do," he asked, "without your garden?"

"I dread winter," said Miss Persis. "I feel shut in—but I plant flowers in the window boxes, and by Christmas I have hyacinths, and after that violets, and they keep me busy."

"And you sell your flowers?"

"There isn't much sale for them," said Miss Persis. "The guests are gone from the hotel. But I have the pleasure of giving them to the village people. To the girls when they graduate, and the brides when they marry, and to the sick, and now and then—to the dead."

"Could you"—he spoke with hesitation—"have some hyacinths ready for Christmas? I should like to buy them?"

Her radiant glance repaid him. "Really?" she asked.

"Yes." He wondered if he should wait so long to see her again.

He felt that he would not be permitted to pass certain bounds.

That night he asked questions at the hotel. The next morning he presented himself at Miss Persis's door.

"I have found that my father knew your father."

There were treasures in the old house of which Miss Persis did not know the value, and she knew that she would not have sold the family heirloom for her father had brought from China, the little carved figure which had been picked up in Japan the wonderful ones and jewels of which her new friends' eyes rested with admiration. "My name is Sanderson," he said, as he was presented to Miss Lavinia. "I've been a rover myself, in the navy. I never married—because I didn't want my wife to live alone, and because I never met a woman I cared about."

Something flamed up in Miss Persis's heart as he gave this little history of himself. He was not married and he wanted to be their friend.

Captain Sanderson went away that day, with an invitation to come again.

An unexpected call to Washington intervened before he saw the sisters again, but he sent a box of roses which made Persis gasp. "To think of such roses in winter, Peter," she said to the yellow cat, and it was Peter who saw her bend and kiss them.

A week before Christmas, Captain Sanderson stated that he would come for the hyacinths. "Everybody is anxious to see them," he wrote. "I'm going to give flowers to all my friends."

The day he was expected was a cold one, but Miss Persis put on a white dress. "I never heard of anything so silly," complained Miss Lavinia, "at your time of life. You'll catch your death of cold."

The phrase "your time of life" made Miss Persis feel old and worn. She went to her room and changed her dress, and when Philip Sanderson arrived from the city, he faced, not the little lady with the rose-flushed cheeks, whom he had seen last, blooming in her garden, but a wan, thin person.

But the sight, instead of bringing disapproval, brought rage.

"What have you done to yourself?" he demanded, when Miss Persis led him to her hyacinths. "It isn't the flowers that I want to look at, it's you."

"I'm not worth looking at," said Miss Persis, faintly.

"You are worth—everything," the captain plumed up the cushions of the big rocker in the window box. "Sit down here, I want to talk to you."

Miss Lavinia, knitting steadily at the other end of the living-room, could not see the pair, but she caught the steady murmur of voices.

Then suddenly she heard a sound that made her sit up and stare.

"If I didn't know it was impossible, Peter," she said to the cat who lay at her feet, "I should say that some one had been kissed!"

Miss Persis came out of the corner looking twenty years younger. Amid the folds of her black gown was pinned a spray of pink hyacinth. Captain Sanderson had put it there.

"It matches your cheeks, Persis," he had said, for all the blushes of youth had come back to the transformed little lady. It was then he had bent and kissed her, and Miss Persis had started guiltily, and had said "Hush."

But Captain Sanderson was not ashamed to own the truth, so he came straight to Miss Lavinia.

"I am going to marry Persis," he said, "and you mustn't think I shall separate you, because you are going to live with us, and so is Peter," and he caught hold of the yellow cat, trying by this subterfuge to hide his emotion.

At her wedding Miss Persis wore her old white gown. She would not accept a penny of the captain's money to supplement her poor little rousseau. But when she came back from the honeymoon she displayed to Lavinia's astonished eyes an array of wonderful creations, which were the expression of the captain's admiration for his pretty wife.

"He made me get these soft pinks and whites and greens," said Miss Persis. "I said I was too old for colors, but he says they make him think of my garden; and do you know?—they seem to make me young."

But she did not tell all that the captain had said when he saw her in a rose-colored gown. "How did it ever happen that you were left to bloom so long in your garden? Fate has surely been good to me, to let me be the first to pluck your softness."

Trust Department

The first obligation resting upon a man when he marries is to provide for his wife and family. The time to do this is when the fruits of his industry are unimpaired.

The proper management of an estate entails the selection of a trustee to hold the property in trust upon a friend, and demands an amount of time and care that few can give. However, there is always the risk that the executor of an estate, if he is not a professional, may mismanage the estate.

When a man dies, his estate is often left in the hands of a trustee, and the trustee is often a man of business, and the estate is often a large one, and the trustee is often a man of business, and the estate is often a large one, and the trustee is often a man of business.

COL. SPROUSE FOR SENATOR

Tennessee Independents Urging Springfield Man To Enter The Race.

HOPKINSVILLE CLAIMS HIM.

Spends Much of His Time Here in Interest of One of His Stores.

Springfield, Tenn., Oct. 11.—O. G. Sprouse, one of Springfield's leading business men, an active and ardent Independent and a member of the state executive committee, is being urged by his friends to enter the race before the incoming legislature for United States Senator for the "short term." A petition is being circulated in Robertson county asking Mr. Sprouse to enter the lists, and has been very generally signed. He has made no announcement of his intention so far. Mr. Sprouse is barely past the constitutional age requirement of thirty years for federal senators. He has had a highly successful career here as a business man and also conducts a large store at Hopkinsville, Ky., and until recently conducted one at Gallatin. If the Independents control in the next general assembly, Mr. Sprouse's friends claim he would be a formidable contender for the to a.

NEEDS A BRACER.
A horse belonging to a resident of Bayonne, N. J., dropped into a well eighteen feet deep and containing six feet of water. He landed head up, but after the rigged derrick and hours of manipulation restored him to his family, was decidedly "all in." Therefore, his eloquent plea for a bracer was met with alacrity, and a pint of whisky was poured down his throat, after which he rose comfortably, whinnied his approval of the brand, and proceeded to demonstrate that he never felt better in his life.

BAG KEEPS WATER COOL.

Probably the Illinois man who has invented a novel water cooler has traveled in Australia. There all the railroads have a canvas bag filled with water hanging from the rear platform. The water in these bags is kept cool by evaporation and the same principle applies to the water bag seen here. This receptacle is made of a material which possesses the peculiar quality of holding the water yet exuding enough moisture to prevent the sun from appreciably affecting the temperature of the water. It requires no stretch of imagination to see how convenient such a bag would be for motorists, not only providing a perennial supply of fresh, cool water for drinking purposes, but for replenishing the car mechanism.

CORK TREE.

The cork tree is a species of oak. In Spain the outer bark is harvested from the same tree once every nine or ten years. The best cork comes from trees that are 50 to 100 years old. Instead of injuring the tree, stripping the bark seems to add impetus to the growth of a new coat. The yield of a tree varies from 50 pounds to 500. What is known as the "cork bark elm" in your section is also called the "witch elm" in some parts of Canada, from the weird ghastly appearance of its boughs and trunk. Although somewhat similar in appearance to the cork oak, it has not the slightest value for its bark. The Spanish tree would almost certainly not thrive in these latitudes.

Turn the Hogs in the Orchard.

One of the best ways of fighting worms and other insect pests of the orchard, aside from spraying, is to keep the infested fruit that has fallen under the trees cleaned up. It will pay to gather these rots and windfalls by hand or hogs or other stock may be turned into eat them. A great variety of insects will be destroyed in this way and that will mean fewer numbers to fight next year. No other method comes as near to controlling the apple maggot as this, as spraying will not reach it because the eggs are laid under the skin by the parent fly. The young maggot on hatching bores along under the skin and after the apple has fallen and is rotting it emerges and goes into the ground to transform into a fly the next spring. This pest works almost entirely on the sweet and early varieties of apples.

A Lead Pencil Danger.

In the United States the danger of putting pencils in the mouth has long been recognized, and in all the schools every precaution is taken to prevent the interchange of pencils as well as the moistening of them with the lips. A great many children and even their elders, who ought to know better, persist in putting pencils in their mouth regardless of the risk they run.

A Matter of Assurance.

"Some of your speeches," said the cynical friend, "make me think of a mathematical marvel I once knew." "In what way?" "He would dispose offhand of any problem you gave him. Nobody in the crowd was able to say whether he got the right answer, and it really didn't seem to make much difference, anyhow."

EFFORT TO SAVE DAYLIGHT

Canadian Towns Put the Clock Ahead and People Go to Work Much Earlier.

Canadian towns are following the lead of England in an effort to "save daylight." Their method is to push the clock ahead so that the age old custom of going to work at 7 or 8 o'clock may be continued, and still use made of the early sunlit hours of the long summer day. Moosejaw and Port Arthur are among the cities definitely making the experiment.

Because of the location of Port Arthur near the dividing line between eastern and central time, that city will have an exceptionally difficult problem. It is now almost an hour away from Winnipeg and the central Canadian towns on sun time, and the setting forward of the clock an additional hour will mean a real deviation from sun time of nearly two hours in Port Arthur. Persons arising at six by their clocks will actually be rising a few minutes after 4 o'clock by the sun. Persons arising at 7 will be in the 5 o'clock early bird class.

There seems to be plausible argument for the saving of daylight hours. It means that in the summer time people should rise with the sun, finish their day's work early in the afternoon, and have the long daylight hours of the evening for recreation. As it now is, they slumber through two or three hours of morning sunshine and make up by using the same number of hours of lamp light.—St. Paul Dispatch.

SHOULD TELL HIGHEST TRUTH

Advanced Thinker, Says Spencer, is Parent of the Future and Must Be Fearless.

Whoever hesitates to utter that which he thinks the highest truth, lest it should be too much in advance of the time, may reassure himself by looking at his acts from an impersonal point of view. Let him duly realize the fact that opinion is the agency through which character adapts external arrangements to itself—that his opinion rightly forms part of this agency—is a unit of force, constituting, with other such units, the general power which works out social changes, and he will perceive that he may properly give full utterance to his innermost conviction, leaving it to produce what effect it may. It is not for nothing that he has in him these sympathies with some principles and repugnance to others. He, with all his capacities and aspirations and beliefs, is not an accident, but a product of the time. He must remember that while he is a descendant of the past he is a parent of the future, and that his thoughts are as children born to him, which he may not carelessly let die. Not as adventitious therefore will the wise man regard the faith which is in him. The highest truth he sees he will fearlessly utter. Knowing that, let what may come of it, he is thus playing his right part in the world—knowing that if he can affect the change he aims at—well; if not—well also; though not so well.—Herbert Spencer.

DEEP OCEAN POCKETS.

The loftiest mountains in the world are something over five miles high, but there are ocean depths of over six miles. The German survey ship Planet sends word that she has made the deepest sounding thus far taken. About forty sea miles off the north coast of Mindanao, the largest and most southerly of the important islands of the Philippines, the Planet found a depth of 32,078 feet. In other words, the Pacific where the sounding was taken was a depth of 6.07 miles, exceeding by 482 feet the greatest depth hitherto shown.

TELEPATHY.

"I suppose," said the physician, smiling and trying to appear witty while feeling the pulse of a lady patient, "I suppose you consider me an old humbug?"

"Why," replied the lady, "I had no idea you could ascertain a woman's thoughts by merely feeling her pulse."

THE DAIRY

DAIRY HOUSE IS CONVENIENT

Walls and Floor of Sanitary Building Should Be of Reinforced Concrete—Cost Is Small.

Every dairyman selling milk to a cannery or cheese factory or city dealer for making dairy butter on his farm, should have a sanitary dairy house. This building should be separate from the stable and other buildings on the farm and should be well supplied with water. Milk for any purpose must be kept in a clean, well-ventilated place.

Solid concrete dairy houses, such as are found on the large dairy farms, are to be recommended. A building 12 by 12 feet is large enough for a herd of twenty to twenty-five cows. The accompanying floor plan, from the Dairy Farm, illustrates a very convenient farmer's dairy house. The size of the rooms may be varied to suit the individual needs.

A concrete tank near the pump makes cooling of the milk convenient. The separator should be located in the same room. A room provided with a sink and rack can be located at one end of the building. This room should be used exclusively for washing and drying cans and bottles. A room with shelves suitable for storing milk should be partitioned off from the opposite end of the building.

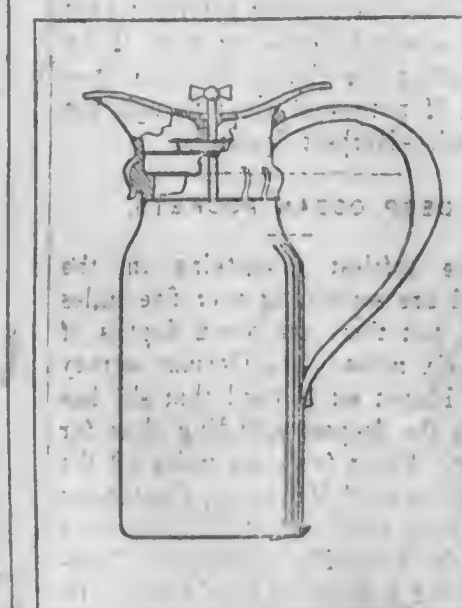

The walls and floor of the dairy house should be of solid reinforced concrete. The roof can be roofing paper or shingles.

The cost of such a building need not exceed $185, varying according to the size of the herd.

NOVEL MILK BOTTLE-PITCHER

Spout, Lid and Handle Attached in Ingenious Way and Will Be Found Quite Convenient.

Or call it a milk-pitcher-bottle, if you like—this device of an Ohio man. Whatever you call it you must admit its ingenuity. A spout and lid have a series of spring clips depending from the edge. These clips engage the neck of an ordinary milk bottle and fasten the spout upon it. A handle extends down the side. In the center of the lid is a rod which points at the bottom for engaging the paper stopper of the milk bottle. The spout attachment can be fastened to any milk bottle in a second. The little rod is thrust down into the stopper and given a twist to stick its fangs into the paper. The cover is then lifted off and, grasping the handle of the whole vessel, is used as a pitcher until it is empty, when the attachment can be removed and fastened to another bottle.

Feeding Dairy Cows.

Fill the pail with corn up on the top, or if it is a day if you can get it instead of fodder or other coarse stuff, containing low food values.

The sensible dairyman does not expect something for nothing, and a cow cannot give a full flow of milk on less than a good ration of food.

Oats, wheat, bran, oil meal and shorts should supplement the corn hay.

Feed some ground corn, but do not make it the sole concentrated ration.

Raising Dairy Heifer.

Raise the best heifer calves. The first six months or year's care of calf determines largely the future usefulness of the cow. Here we develop the tendency to take on ruin the milking qualities.

A Splendid Tonic.

"Cora, Ky. Mrs. Iva Moore, of this place, says: 'I was so weak, I could hardly walk. I tried Cardui, and was greatly relieved. It is a splendid tonic. I have recommended Cardui to many friends, who tried it with good results.' Testimony like this comes unsolicited, from thousands of earnest women, who have been benefited by the timely use of that successful tonic medicine, Cardui. Purely vegetable, mild, but reliable, Cardui well merits its high place in the esteem of those who have tried it. It relieves women's pains, and strengthens weak women. It is certainly worth a trial. Your druggist sells Cardui."

PUZZLES, ASTRONOMERS.

One of the most astonishing objects in the heavens is the great nebula in the constellation Andromeda, which is visible as a misty speck to the naked eye. It has long puzzled astronomers because, while its structure—a series of vast rings surrounding a central mass—suggests a gaseous constitution, its spectrum is continuous, resembling that of the sun. It has been suggested that it may be composed of stars constituting a universe external to ours. Studies of its parallax, however, indicate that it is nearer to us than some of the well-known stars, such as Capella; and Gort, the English astronomer, points out that if the Andromeda nebula were assumed to be an external universe, having a diameter comparable with that of the Milky Way, its mass would be forty million million million times the mass of the sun. This is regarded as incredible and so may be taken as an additional argument in favor of the view that this nebula is a member of our system. Harper's Weekly.

A GERMLESS DRINK.

Many of us have seen the bubbler principle at public drinking places, but a New York man has adapted it to be used with the bottled spring water so popular in offices. Where the spigot would be on the ordinary cooler there is a laterally extending pipe about a foot long. At the end of this is a small basin with a mouthpiece in the center. A plunger keeps this opening normally closed, but when the plunger is pushed in the weight of the water in the bottle causes a miniature geyser to spout up from the mouthpiece, and the person desiring a drink can be accommodated without having to use a cup or glass that is used by everybody else in the office and by people passing through. A waste pipe carries the waste water to a bucket below the fountain.

MENDING CLOTHES A NEW

French Shops Fix 'Em So You Can Find the Hole Yourself. It Is Said.

Every country has its special little trades which are its own. And one of the most interesting of these is to be found in every city of the country in the art of mending.

That sound is cross, but just the same there's art in mending. The French do it. And their shops are 'hole stopping' and mending. They dotted all over New York and they are to be found in Chicago. Even here they will go west.

"Hole stopping" and mending means that if you are a social questioner and test your million dollar gown, you can take a few steps to the original gods, with the dress and get it back in a few days with the rent so disguised you can't even find it yourself. By a system of sewing, pasting, clipping and sewing the French have become so expert in their work that it is impossible to detect the patch after it is put in. Stands of the real cloth are woven in the aperture in such a way that they fit the regular weaving of the cloth. There is no lumpy sewing—all is done as smoothly as on the original loom.

FICTION FILLED WITH WOE

"He wavered—but it was only an instant. Then a sense of courage came to him."
"What?" he exclaimed, "You have visibly paled, you have!"
"His cigar had gone out, but still he sat there."
"He bent over her. Words failed him."

"It was nothing," he muttered, with a smile. "I would have done much for—"

"Curse you!" cried a voice.

"He pushed her gently away from him. 'It cannot be,' he said simply."

"Their eyes met. He never flinched."

"His muscles were tense."

"And then suddenly out of the black night of his despair came the thought that—'Ah! could it be?'"

"Great sobs shook his frame."

"He had steeled himself against her presence."

"He stared at her with his eye."

"He talked idly about many things, and yet they both knew that—"

"He was pale with repressed emotion."

"He felt a sudden sharp pain."

THE WATER CURE.

If you just make your face behave—if it will break out in irrelevant little spots with monotonous regularity—by all means try the water cure. Throw away the pills and powders, cap-sules, lozenges and bottles of liquid medicine, salves and all the other paraphernalia by which you have been trying to improve your appearance. Is that accomplished? Good.

Now, when you rise in the early morning drink two tumblers of fresh spring water. Drink a tumbler of water with your breakfast, and an hour afterwards repeat the treatment. At least two tumblers of water should be consumed between each meal, and as many more as you can comfortably take. Just before retiring for the night have a fresh pitcher of water placed beside your bed, and at any time you awaken during the hours between darkness and daylight remember to take another drink. Water dilutes the poisons of the system, carrying them away more readily. As it is these poisons which cause imperfections in the skin, the value of the water cure may readily be realized.

CUPID ON THE RUN

Late Postmaster At Lafayette Cuts Loose From Uncle Sam.

JOINS TRIGG COUNTY MAN.

Happy Culmination Of A Courtship Extending Over Two Years.

O. B. Brandon and Mrs. Quet White were married about 6 o'clock p. m. Thursday by Rev. A. R. Kasey at the Methodist parsonage.

The bride was postmistress at Lafayette for several years, but resigned last week, though no one dreamed of her motive when she announced that she had sent in her resignation to the department. The groom is a prosperous young farmer of near Roaring Springs, Trigg county.

There was a tinge of the romantic about the marriage. For some reason known only to the happy couple everything possible was done to keep their friends from knowing anything definite of the wedding. Wednesday night the bride-to-be went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Southall and remained over night. Thursday Mr. Brandon called at Mr. Southall's and spent part of the day. The couple were unsuccessful in getting Rev. Kasey to drive down and unite them, so they drove to town, and going to the home of Mr. Kasey, were married in the presence of a few witnesses. The marriage was the culmination of a courtship of two years or more. Their many friends wish them a long life of happiness.

Harper-Davie.

(Communicated.)

A rainbow wedding of unusual beauty was that of Mr. John Irvin Cobb and Miss Sarah Reita Davie, which occurred at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. K. L. Bagby, 537 Commerce street, Clarksville, Tenn., last Monday afternoon at five o'clock.

The house decorations were tastefully planned and consisted of palms, ferns and cut flowers.

The guests were received by Misses Irene Kirshner and Eva Bagby, who wore white embroidered costumes.

Promptly at the appointed hour, to the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Maud Dawson, of Clerndon, Ky., the bridal party entered and grouped themselves before an exquisitely arranged altar of ferns and palms, where Rev. Dault, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, united the destinies of the young people, using the beautiful and impressive ring ceremony.

The bride's sister, Mrs. J. C. Hanberry, was the matron of honor and wore a gown of yellow satin with a train of eraseries. Her flowers were pink roses. Miss Ruby Dawson, in gown of pink messaline and chiffon cloth and Miss Susie Wood, wearing a gown of blue silk marquisette over blue satin, both carrying bouquets of pink roses, served as bridesmaids.

Mr. C. Bailey Harper was best man and Messrs. Ed Wood and Marshall Biter were groomsmen.

The bride entered with her matron of honor and wore a beautiful gown of white silk marquisette over white satin with lace and pearl trimmings. Her bouquet was of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

After receiving the congratulations of numerous friends and relatives present, the happy couple left, amid showers of rice and good wishes, for Chattanooga, Tenn., to spend several days.

Upon their return they will board with the bride's mother.

They were the recipients of many handsome and useful presents, which attested the extensive popularity of the joy.

At Lake Tandy.

Mrs. Walter Macford and Mr. and Mrs. Tandy were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Biter at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Biter.
